

MISSOURI PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION

JOB OPPORTUNITY

ATTORNEY / REGULATORY LAW JUDGE

The Missouri Public Service Commission is seeking an attorney for the position of Regulatory Law Judge. This is a quasi-judicial, administrative law judge position that requires the ability to preside over adversarial hearings which may last from 1 to 15 consecutive days on the record, which will routinely involve from 10 to 80 complex economic, engineering, and accounting issues, which include a minimum of 3 but often more than 10 or 12 adverse parties, and in which the amount in dispute will often be millions of dollars.

In addition to presiding over complex litigation, the successful candidate will independently control a docket of cases from the Telecommunications, Electric, Gas, Water and Sewer industries and review extensive pleadings, written expert testimony, briefs, and other case-related documents in the preparation of final Commission orders. The judge must work effectively within a panel of five other judges and for a five-member Commission. This requires the ability to provide sound legal analysis and well-drafted documents under demanding deadlines.

Five years of experience in administrative law, regulatory law or government practice is required. Applicant must be a member of the Missouri Bar and must demonstrate excellent reasoning and writing skills.

Starting salary is $56,664 - $59,016 with a potential increase following successful completion of a probationary period. To be considered for this position, please send an application, resume, a copy of all transcripts, legal writing sample and references by 5:00 pm April 12, 2013 to: MO Public Service Commission, Reference Number SGC020413, P.O. Box 360, Jefferson City, MO 65102. For additional information, visit <http://www.psc.mo.gov/>.
